The science of ergonomics is an integral part of their designers' and engineers' process of creating a new mouse. Ergo series mice offer more natural postures, superior ergonomic benefits, and reduced movement or muscle strain and striking form factors. Ergo products like Lift for Business place fingers and hands in a more natural posture, helping to relax the upper body. This leads to a quantifiable reduction in muscle activity, so work is more productive with less strain and forearm muscle fatigue.

Reducing muscle strain and fatigue, while adding proper hand support, leads to a greater comfort, especially during long periods or work. Ergonomically-designed products help people focus on what matters. Ergonomic equipment helps people work more comfortably, with higher efficiency and quality, with less downtime. It results in happier employees with lower absentee days. In short, ergonomics is good economics. Their Ergo series can help your company become a healthier place to work.
